Some Tips for Applying for a Grant

Be brief, concise and clear. Make your points understandable. Provide accurate and HONEST information. Include candid accounts of problems and realistic plans to address them. If you must omit required information or data, explain why. Do not assume that the reviewers are familiar with your school, community or program. Keep the review criteria in mind when writing the application.

Be organized and logical. Many applications fail to receive high scores because the reviewers cannot follow the thought process of the applicant or because parts of the application do not fit together.
